Accessing Library Resources Off Campus

Istanbul Medipol University Library and Documentation Department provides access to electronic journals, e-books, and databases through the OpenAthens authentication system when you are outside the campus.

When you want to access a database or electronic resource off campus, you can log in using your Medipol university email account through Microsoft/Outlook.

*You do not need to create a separate OpenAthens username or password.
You only need to log in with your Medipol university account.

To Log In;

1.Select an electronic resource from the Library website

Go to the Library website and choose the resource you want to use from Databases, Electronic Resources, E-Journals, or E-Books.

All Databases

2.You will be directed to the OpenAthens login page

If you are outside the campus, the system will automatically direct you to the OpenAthens login page.

3.Select Medipol

On the institution selection page, find and select:

Istanbul Medipol University

Then continue.

4.Log in with your Medipol account

When the Microsoft login page opens, enter your Medipol university email address.

For example:

@medipol.edu.tr or @std.medipol.edu.tr

Then log in using your Microsoft/Outlook account password.

Important: Do not use your personal Gmail, Hotmail, or other personal email account. You must use the Microsoft account provided to you by Medipol University.

5.Access the resource

After your login is verified, you will be directed to the database, journal, article, or e-book you want to access.

You can now use the university's subscribed electronic resources even when you are outside the campus.

Direct Login to Databases

Some databases and publishers also provide login options such as:

Institutional Login → Sign in via your institution → OpenAthens on their own websites.

In this case, follow these steps:

Institutional Login → Istanbul Medipol University → Microsoft/University Account

However, especially when you are outside the campus, the easiest way is to use the electronic resource links on the Library website and log in through OpenAthens.

OpenAthens also recommends that users first authenticate through their institution.
